OneSearch: Articles, Books, & More

- What is OneSearch?
  - OneSearch is a tool that searches across the Ort Library's resources and collections. OneSearch brings together article databases, the library catalog, and e-books, as well as other online resources provided by the library all with a single search!

- How do I access OneSearch and conduct a search?
  - To access OneSearch, point your web browser to the Lewis J. Ort Library website (https://www.frostburg.edu/library/) and enter your search terms in the search box as in the following example:

- What do the Tabs across the top of the search box mean?
  - Each of the tabs above the OneSearch box allows you to conduct a different type of search:
    - OneSearch – Search all library resources (journal articles, books, e-books, etc.)
    - Catalog – Limit your search to the library catalog
    - A-Z Databases – Select a specific database for conducting your research
    - Journal Search – Browse electronic journals by title or subject
    - EBooks – Search for electronic books
    - Library Account - Access your account to renew books or to see what items you have checked out

- How are search results displayed?
  - A sample results page illustrating some of the major features of OneSearch may be found on the next page. Results are ranked by relevancy based upon the search terms entered. You have the option to view results by publication date.

- Can I refine my searches?
  - Absolutely! Use the options found in the left margin of the screen to limit your results by publication type, full-text resources, language, geography, or resources held by the Ort Library – plus more!

- What other features are available? Can I customize OneSearch?
  - OneSearch includes a citation formatting tool and links to full-text resources.

- Can I use OneSearch from off-campus?
  - Yes. You must be a Frostburg State University student, faculty, or staff member. You will be prompted to enter the barcode number on your FSU ID card and your last name to access the electronic resources.
